ICCA's lively, successful 1996 Seoul Conference, hosted by the Korean Commercial Arbitration Board, addressed four questions: + Is there a growing international arbitration culture? + Is there an expanding culture that favours combining arbitration, conciliation, and/or other dispute resolution procedures? + To what extent do arbitrators in international cases disregard the bag and baggage of national systems? + When and where do national courts reflect an international culture when deciding issues relating to international arbitration? In ICCA's Congress Series, international experts, professionals, and practitioners in the field of arbitration examine the topic of the culture of international arbitration. This work includes text from Conference commentators. The comments and reports address such diverse topics as UNCITRAL's contribution to the international arbitration culture, the interaction of arbitration and mediation, and the development of an arbitration culture within the state judiciary in the Russian federation. The variety, timeliness, and global character of these papers make this book an informative resource for practitioners of arbitration, other forms of ADR, and litigation.
